Zadanie 4. (0–4)

Przeczytaj tekst. Dobierz właściwy nagłówek (A–F) do każdej części tekstu (4.1.–4.4.). Wpisz odpowiednią literę w każdą kratkę.

Uwaga: dwa nagłówki zostały podane dodatkowo i nie pasują do żadnej części tekstu.

- A. Do not borrow expensive things
- B. Never lend the borrowed thing to anyone else
- C. Take good care of the thing you borrow
- D. Try not to miss the deadline to give the thing back
- E. Ask for the thing but don't insist
- F. Be ready to cover the possible costs

THE ETIQUETTE OF BORROWING

4.1.
------	--

When you want to borrow things, be prepared for a “No”, especially if something is expensive or important to the owner. Don't expect any explanation. Owners usually take care of their things and often don't like to lend them. If you notice that the lender feels uncomfortable with your request, finish the conversation with a tactful “I understand”.

4.2.

Don't expect the lender to remind you to return their things. It is your responsibility to remember for how long you've borrowed something and do your best to stick to what has been arranged. If you would like to change the return date, always ask if it is possible.

4.3.

It's important to treat the things you borrow with greater respect than your own possessions. For example, make sure you don't leave greasy marks on the book pages or don't put the CD where it could be damaged.

4.4.

Borrowers must either replace the thing they have broken or lost or pay back its original price. If you cannot find an item identical to the one you have destroyed, then try to find something equally expensive. If the lender wants money for the damaged thing, do your best to pay a satisfactory amount.

Zadanie 5. (0–3)

Przeczytaj trzy teksty dotyczące psów. Z podanych odpowiedzi wybierz właściwą, zgodną z treścią tekstu. Zakreśl literę A, B albo C.

Tekst 1.DOG-FRIENDLY

We've teamed up with cottages4you to bring you a wide selection of dog-friendly cottages. For every holiday booked, 10% of the money you pay will support our charity that helps animals. Discover hundreds of fantastic houses in the UK, and enjoy a break where you and your dog will have the freedom to do what you want. All places are visited and examined by our regional managers once a year. To book online, visit: www.cottages-4-you.co.uk, or call our friendly sales team on: 0845 268 8714.

adapted from www.rspca.org.uk

5.1. The author of the text wants to

- A. express his opinion on travelling with dogs.
- B. offer discounts for owners who travel with dogs.
- C. advertise holiday accommodation for dog owners.

Tekst 2.FRIENDS FOR LIFE

We all enjoy playing with dogs, but problems can appear when dogs want too much of our attention. If your dog is nervous about something and you always concentrate on its needs, the pet may become impatient when you leave it alone. If you want a pet which has good manners, you should follow some basic rules. You must be the one to decide when to start and finish playing. If you don't want a dog that constantly runs off with the remote control or jumps up at you, ignore these behaviours. Instead, teach your dog that sitting quietly is the best way to get your attention.

adapted from How to Take Care of Your Dog

5.2. The text explains

- A. what to do when your dog is sick.
- B. how to make your dog behave well.
- C. why dogs ignore human attention.

Tekst 3.VISITING PUPPIES

In one corner there was a box lined with towels where we could see nine yellow puppies moving all over each other.

'I've never seen anything so cute in my life,' Jenny said.

We sat on the floor and let the puppies climb over us. The deal I'd made with Jenny before coming here was that we'd check the puppies out, ask questions, and make sure that we were ready to bring home a dog.

'This is the first advert we're answering,' I said. 'Let's not make any quick decisions.'

'You're right,' she said. 'There's no need to hurry.'

adapted from Marley & Me by John Grogan

5.3. Both Jenny and the narrator

- A. realized they weren't interested in these dogs.
- B. had different opinions about what they saw.
- C. wanted to be careful about their decision.

THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE

In 1870, a creative engineer named John Roebling came up with an idea to construct a spectacular new bridge connecting New York with Long Island. However, bridge-building experts thought that it couldn't be done. They told Roebling to forget the project. But John Roebling couldn't ignore the vision of the bridge that he had in his mind. He decided to share the dream with his son, Washington, who was also an engineer. They had a few long conversations and finally John made Washington believe that the bridge could in fact be built. Working together for the first time, the father and son prepared all the plans for the construction of the bridge and worked out how to solve the problems. They hired a team and began to build their dream bridge.

The project started well, but a few months later there was a tragic accident on the building site. John Roebling died and his son, Washington, was seriously injured.

Everyone had a negative comment to make on the construction of the bridge. Experts felt that the project should be stopped because the Roeblings were the only people who knew how to build the bridge. Washington never listened to the experts telling him to give up his plans, and he decided to complete the bridge. His friends wanted to help him but they did not know how to do it. After the accident Washington couldn't speak or walk but his mind was still sharp. He knew that he had to find a way to communicate with other people.

He could move one finger so he developed a code of communication with his wife. He touched her arm with his finger and in this way he was able to show what he wanted. His wife called the engineers and he used the same method of tapping her arm to tell them what to do. The project was under way again. For thirteen years Washington tapped out the instructions with his finger on his wife's arm until the bridge was finally completed.

Today, the spectacular Brooklyn Bridge stands in all its glory to illustrate the triumph of one man's spirit and his strong will. It stands as a monument to the love of his wife who for many long years patiently decoded his messages and told the engineers what to do. The bridge shows us that dreams that seem impossible can be realized.

READING THE WORLD

As a New Yorker, I used to think of myself as a very cosmopolitan person, but my bookshelves told a different story. Apart from a few Indian novels, my literature collection consisted mainly of British and American titles. 7.1. _____ So my reading was limited to stories by English-speaking authors.

At the start of 2012, I set myself a challenge. 7.2. _____ I just wanted to find out what I was missing. At first, I had no idea how to go about it. I knew it would be difficult to find publications from nearly 200 nations on the shelves of my local bookshop. So, I decided to ask the planet's readers for help. I created a blog called A Year of Reading the World and asked for suggestions of international titles that I could read in English.

The reaction was amazing. Before I fully realized it, people all over the planet replied with offers of help. Some of them even sent me books from their home countries. 7.3. _____ In addition, several writers, like Turkmenistan's Ak Welsapar and Panama's Juan David Morgan, sent me unpublished translations of their novels. I was amazed.

adapted from www.bbc.com

- A. They translated English books for my readers.
- B. I had rarely bought anything that foreigners wrote.
- C. I decided to continue reading it till the end.
- D. It was to read one book from every country in one year.
- E. Others suggested their favourite authors.
